

CRACKSMAN MADE CHARMING IN PLAY

Raffles Gets Your Sympathies as Kyrie Bellew Presents Him in Evening Dress Pursued by Blond Detective.

CROOKS MISUNDERSTOOD.

Really, as You Will Learn from the Play, Paternity is Responsible for Their Misdeeds—E. M. Holland Shares Star's Honors.

If there were any cracksmen in last night's audience at the Princess they must have issued forth after the last act of "Raffles" and strutted up Broadway feeling themselves very superior persons.

For they had seen one of their brethren dramatized and exalted until when he escaped a blond sleuth-hound of the law by a clever ruse at the last moment the audience said "Good!" and hoped the forgiving good girl who loved him would run after him and get married to him on the next corner, while he stopped to catch his breath.

Poor chap, after all, he was not to blame! There was something wrong in his distorted life. He said so. He was handicapped from the start by a father who was a bushranger.

Ah! the injustice of maternity. The irony of a destiny which leads us to "lift" a lady's necklace or to build a giant corporation out of boy dumplings! What is the unseen, relentless power which drives us to make a nice fat living without working? The poor, misunderstood crook!

How his sad fate brings tears to our eyes! But at last he is shown in his true light. He is chastened by the calm.

Next the Grafter.

Hasten the day when we may see the grafter idealized in the limelight. We may yet learn to love him as we have learned to love Raffles.

The distinguished guild of Amateur and Professional Cracksmen will receive Kyrie Bellew for the gentled, sympathetic plane on which, with the aid of silver-gray hair and evening dress, he has placed those who work while we sleep.

Mr. Bellew looked and acted the hero of E. W. Hornung's light-fingered sketches in neat style, though we were very much afraid his significant glances and whispered "cozies" would give him dead away before he had gotten very far on his gentlemanly career of crime. A blond man in the back of the house might have "spotted" him instantly.

E. M. Holland made the Sherlocking Captain Bedford quite as obvious a character. Fear was felt from the outset that he would frighten Raffles away from the Princess to Cherry street. But, no; Raffles stayed and made wagers with the detective, for the benefit of charity, which covers a multitude of sins and a great deal of acting—the detective wouldn't catch the cracksmen. This Captain Bedford was our old friend, "drooping mustaches, drawl, munching chops and all, Captain Bedford, of 'Jim the Penman'."

Divide the "Swag."

And Mr. Bellew and Mr. Holland divided the "swag" as often spoken of as "the honors of the evening."

All the men of the cast played their parts well, but the women, headed by Clara Blandick, the good Gwendolyn, captured by a small share of the plaudits of applause.

"Raffles" is still little more than a sketch. It begins with the capture of a rough, snarling burglar and ends with the escape of the cunning and cultured cracksmen. The play hasn't much action, but it has second-story quality of interest which even the death of Raffles makes a certain speech in his thirteenth didn't entirely destroy.

If you are a woman and possess a diamond necklace you will put your necklace under the lamp and key as soon as you get home from "Raffles," and then, before retiring, take a nervous peek under the bed.

SHOOTING OF BOY KEPT A SECRET

Family Feared Shock to Father Dying of Consumption—Little Myron Jackson Wounded in Hand by Brother's Chum.

Little Myron Jackson, of No. 11A West One Hundred and Eighteenth street, told an Evening World reporter to-day how his brother's chum, Albert Thier, of No. 304 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, accidentally shot him in the hand last night.

"He was showing brother his new 'volter,'" said the child. "I was sitting on the rocking chair. Mamma came in and asked the 'volter' was loaded. Albert said no, and then counted—'one, two, three, four, five—bang!' I was hit in the hand, but I did not cry."

Myron is five years old. He is a remarkably pretty child. His injury is serious, as Dr. M. L. Loeb, of No. 15 West One Hundred and Eighteenth street, says he fears blood poisoning.

Thier is several years older. He told the police that he was visiting Milton Jackson, his chum, when the accident occurred.

Thier's father is dying of consumption. Because of this the Jackson family insisted on keeping the shooting a secret, and will not permit Thier's removal out of the house until the father is dead.

Mr. Jackson is an optician, and, when moving into his present residence, changed the house number from 13 to 11A, as he is superstitious about the "unlucky" number.

He struck on his head and was instantly killed. Theodore Staats and Frank Barton were with him at the time and they had the body taken home.

"RAFFLES" BELLEW FUMIGATES THE COARSE PERSON WHO IS NOT THE "AMATEUR CRACKSMAN."

It is said the men, who had been life-long friends, quarrelled over the payment of a bill.

TRAIN SMASHES A TROLLEY.

RHEUMATISM FOR 4 YEARS.

Jas. McQuade, Broadway, N. Y. City. Cured by Father John's Medicine. "I feel it my duty to praise Father John's Medicine for the good it has done me. I had been suffering with rheumatism for four years, and had used every remedy that I heard of, but nothing did me any good. I got so I could not sleep nights from the awful pain all over me. I had seen Father John's Medicine advertised, and concluded to try it. I had not used it very long before I felt the pain and saw the swelling leaving me, and to my surprise I felt as if I were a new man. I cheerfully recommend Father John's Medicine to my friends, who know how I have suffered, and hope that this testimonial may be published, so that other sufferers may read it. (Signed) Jas. McQuade, 1 Broadway, New York City." Not a patent medicine.

SMOTHERING AT NIGHT.

New York Man Cured of It by Father John's Medicine.

Frank Brown, of 102 First Ave., New York, says he suffered from smothering at night and tightness of the chest, and was cured by Father John's Medicine. Also that his son, who was very thin, is being made strong by this old remedy. It is not a patent medicine.

BRUISES ON BODY INDICATE MURDER

So Declare Friends of Timothy Tennyson, Who Was Found Dead on the Beach at New Creek, S. I.

The body of the man found on the beach at New Creek, S. I., was identified early to-day as that of Timothy Tennyson, of Linoleum, S. I., who had been missing from his home for several days. Members of his family, hearing of the finding of the body, went to the New Dorp police station.

With Coroner Schaefer they are convinced that he was murdered, and detectives have been detailed to the case. It is their belief that Tennyson was murdered far from where he was found and taken there in a boat.

It was evidently planned that his body should be found as though it had been washed up by the waves, but it was thrown so high on the beach that the water had not touched it. The clothing was perfectly dry when found.

On the side of the head there is a great discolored mark as though the man had been struck with a club or heavy blackjack. A postmortem examination will be held to-day to determine the cause of death.

No one has yet been found who has seen Tennyson since he left home. It is said that he had considerable money and a valuable watch when he left, but nothing was found in his pockets.

QUARANTINE AT ALLEGHENY.

State Authorities of Pennsylvania Try to Stop Small-Pox.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 23.—Allegheny will be quarantined to-day to protect the outside public from small-pox contagion if the State Board of Health is able to carry out its threat. For several months Allegheny has been afflicted with many cases of small-pox, but the authorities of the city were confident of being able to control the disease.

Dr. W. R. Bott, Quarantine Officer of the State Board of Health, notified Superintendent McLaughlin of the Allegheny Health Bureau that the State Board had decided to quarantine the city unless within five days the laws regulating the control of contagious diseases were enforced by the Allegheny Bureau of Health. The time limit expired on Saturday, but because of the appeals of prominent citizens it was extended.

Already orders have been issued to regulate the transmission of mail, money by banks, parcels, packages and baggage.

ABOUT OYSTERS.

Oysters are very perverse mollusks.

They are even particular about which side they lay on when in bed.

Of course everybody knows that oysters have beds.

An oyster cannot live on its left side.

Other men make a lot of noise about nothing.

Still other men make a great deal of noise about something that is really worth making a noise about.

And these are the men who accomplish things.

Just like World Wants.

A "Business Opportunity" ad, for instance, in the morning World will tell the millions about some man's business that is offered for sale.

And very often it is a business that means an excellent living or a fortune for the man who buys it.

In The World this morning there are 115 "Business Opportunities" and "For Sales."

A respectable person with $1,000 can become identified with a business venture that will net $15,000, says one advertiser.

A dry-goods and stationery store is offered in Jersey City.

An oyster and chop house is offered. Then there is a grocery store in Harlem.

There are bakeries, restaurants, cafes, barber shops, confectionery stores and one tea store. In fact almost every business is represented from a cigar stand to a factory.

The chance you are looking for is looking for you in The World's "Business Opportunities."
